MAXIMIZE YOUR PRODUCTIVITY ON LONG-TERM WRITING PROJECTS

Do you wait for that elusive free morning in order to concentrate on your writing, but find that the time is never available?

Or do you just plain procrastinate on writing?

This seminar will present simple, doable action steps that you can take to increase and maintain your writing productivity over the course of a long-term writing project. If you’ve been unhappy with your writing output, the strategies presented here can help you turn around your writing habits, while dispelling common myths about writing that impede productivity. It’s amazing how small changes in how you work can result in more publications!

SPEAKER: GINA J HIATT, Ph.D.

Gina J Hiatt, Ph.D. is a clinical psychologist and academic coach who helps professors and graduate students to complete research and writing projects and publish, while maintaining high teaching standards and other commitments. Gina received her Ph.D. in 1978 from McGill University, in clinical psychology. Her research was in the area of learning and memory, working with the noted neuropsychologist, Brenda Milner. She then went on to do her postdoctoral year at UCLA, at the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute, sponsored by the Brain Research Institute.
